Feast of Divine Mercy

The novena in preparation for the Feast of Divine Mercy begins on Good Friday

A few words from Fr Joe.....

I have strong childhood memories of Palm Sunday celebrations in our home parish. As we arrived at the church there were bunches of long, thin, cream coloured palm branches, or more accurately, leaves, with a very pointy tip. Everybody took one, and at the appropriate moment held them up for the Canon to bless. One of my sisters was expert at origami and she could always be relied on to use her sharp nails to split the palm down the middle, poke a hole in one half and with a deft flick of the wrist, she would pull one side through the other and hey presto a little palm cross appeared. During the long gospel, which I really didn't like, I was prone to poke my other sister with the tip of the palm leaf, making her squeal, stop it! Then I would get hear a hiss or a snarl from mum or dad, threatening all sorts of punishments when we got home. All in all, I really found it all very long, boring and way beyond my comprehension.

As the years have passed I've become enthused with the whole ritual of marking the entry of Our Lord into Jerusalem. I can imagine the crowds cheering his arrival into the holy city, and can see the donkey, the green palms spread like a carpet on the road, and feel the great excitement. Now I know it's the beginning of this amazing week when the Christian community really reflect and pray on the Lord's passion, death and resurrection. It is one of the great privileges of the priesthood to celebrate these liturgies, with the parish, during the coming days. I think those who never got beyond the boredom of childhood experiences have pretty much stopped coming and now we have congregations who really care about this week. Hopefully we will gather in good numbers, come early, take it all in, participate fully and make time for extra prayer and reflection. And of course, be good to your sisters!

National Eucharistic Adoration Pilgrimage to Knock, Sunday 19th April 2026

The Eucharistic Adoration Apostolate invites Parishioners to its Annual Pilgrimage to Knock Shrine on Sunday 19th April. There is a full programme for everyone, including a teen retreat, guided Adoration led by the Holy Family Mission, a Procession and a keynote address by Fr Nicholas Grace. A bus is being organised which will depart locally at 8.15 am. Please contact John McCormack at 087 2208714 for more information and tickets.
