A few words from Fr Joe.....

I heard a very interesting item on the radio on Monday morning. The segment dealt with ACCORD pre-marriage courses. The journalist headed to Navan and interviewed a course facilitator, two couples preparing for marriage and the priest who gave an input. The interviews were recorded during the break between sessions, and the happy hum of conversation in the back ground sounded both lively and happy. The facilitator gave an excellent summary of the course content, 8 modules, all dealing with aspects of the couple relationship and all with the aim of deepening love, communication and awareness. The couples were lovely too, clearly committed, one already had children, the others were hoping for a family, and all said the course was much better than they expected. They said they came a bit reluctantly, because it is a requirement, seeing it as a 'box ticking' exercise, but actually found it stimulating. They also said that the presumed it would be church and faith heavy, but thankfully everything they heard was positive and helpful. The priest answered the question, 'what would a celibate man know about marriage?' by speaking about his own parents and their relationship. He also spoke about his observations of some of the couples he has married who he has remained close to, baptising their children and watching them grow in love. He used the "Prayer of the newly married couple" to bring the presence and love of God into the conversation. It was very uplifting to hear something so positive on the radio which might encourage any couple to participate fully in their marriage preparation course. We begin now the 50 days of Easter a time when the fullness of God's love, revealed by the Risen Lord can be encountered, reflected on and allowed to sustain our living faith for the year ahead. I pray that his will be a blessed and joyful time for everyone and that the gift of peace might come to our fragile world. Happy Easter

'I have risen and I am with you still. Alleluia!'

Praising the goodness and mercy of God is our central and joyful purpose within the Easter Sunday liturgy. The scripture for today's celebration proclaims God's ultimate victory over death. The One hung on a tree and laid in the tomb is no longer rejected, but raised to be appointed judge of the living and of the dead (First Reading and Gospel). Christ is forever the cornerstone (Psalm) and, having taken his place at the right hand of God (Second Reading), he continues to offer to us the priceless gift of a share in his life.

Parish Manager – New Role in Holy Cross Parish Dundrum

Holy Cross Parish Dundrum is introducing a new Parish Manager as it seeks to address the challenges posed by a decreasing number of priests and the increasing administrative demands. It is intended that this role would handle the day-to-day non-pastoral and administrative duties, working closely with the parish priest and supporting existing staff and volunteers. This will allow the parish priest to focus on pastoral care and developing the core mission of the parish. A recruitment advert for the Parish Manager position can be reviewed on the Dundrum parish website www.dundrumparish.com
